THE UNIT LAW

What the Anti-Saloon League Wants
For All the Counties

The Rev. Charles L. Collins, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League in Kentucky, has outlined the plan of campaign during the coming year.

Mr. Collins stated that the League would not try to get the Legislature to pass a bill shutting out liquor from the entire state, as has been reported, but rather will make an effort to get the present County Unit Law operative in all counties of the state regardless of the size of the cities therein.

WINTERS

MAYSVILLE, KY.

The physic habit is more dangerous than dyspepsia

Most Physics Leave You Weak

Dyspepsia often causes intense distress and pain, which is quickly relieved by a thorough physic, but unless the proper remedy is taken the patient is very apt to find himself a slave to the "Physic Habit."

This is caused by the severe shock which the drug gives to the intestinal muscles making them so weak they are unable to voluntarily perform their functions. The bowels cannot act of their own accord and so the physic which caused the trouble is taken again but in a larger dose in order to accomplish results. The need for such an artificial treatment becomes chronic and the size of the dose must be gradually increased. The patient at last becomes a confirmed victim of the "Physic Habit," and his strength and health rapidly leave him.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

does not act like other laxatives. Instead of weakening the intestinal muscles it strengthens them that they can perform their functions unaided. It is a pleasant remedy to take, and rapidly strengthens all the muscles through its great tonic properties. In cases of dyspepsia it quickly relieves the pain and soon affects a permanent cure.

All druggists sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at 50 cents and $1 a bottle.

Money back if it doesn't satisfy.

Mr. A. S. Conrad, who had made arrangements to move to Lafayette, Ind., on second thought has concluded that Maysville is about as good a place as any on earth to live, and has given the idea of moving away. IN THE OLD HOME

An Unpleasant Predilection

I undressed and threw myself on the bed, too tired even to light the gas, but glad to be home again after my absence abroad. Why no one had met me at the station in answer to the telegram I had sent from New York, I could not explain. I was much disappointed, but eagerly hastened to the house. There I found everything in darkness and, thinking the folks had probably not received the message telling of my unexpected leave of absence and had gone to the theater, I went up to my room and was soon fast asleep. Next morning I was aroused by a tapping on my door. Drowsily I answered something about being sleepy and rolled over again. How much longer I slept I do not know, but again I was awakened by a more insistent knock. Remembering Bob's intense delight in the past in atrociously tormenting me whenever he thought I wanted to stay in bed, I answered as grouchily as of old:

"Quit that pounding, won't you, and let me alone!"

"Why, papa, you cross old bear, you!" I heard a silvery voice exclaim. "I'm coming right in to pull you out if you aren't up before I count three. Come, now—one!"

Thunderstruck at the sound of a voice so different from what I had expected, I sat bolt upright, not quite certain I was not dreaming. As I did so my eyes fell upon the furnishings of the room, and, by the sunlight streaming in, I could see they were not those of the den I had left a year before. Everything was changed. Instantly I realized that some one must now be in possession of our old home, though for what reason or how long I had no time to conjecture. It was startling enough to know that I was in somebody else's bed and might have some difficulty in explaining my presence there. Moreover, if that—

"Two!"

Horrors of horrors! The full meaning of my unfortunate position began to dawn upon me. If I were to utter so much as a single word my voice would doubtless betray me, while, if I attempted to bar the door—The cold sweat oozed out on my face and limbs.

"Three!" triumphantly; "I'm coming!"

With an involuntary movement I clutched the bed covers and drew them over my head, as if the hiding of my face would end the matter. Just then the knob turned; the door cracked. I heard the rattle of a skirt. With a bound I reached the door before it had opened very far and set my weight against it.

"Why, papa, what is the matter? Let me in at once. There—you can't stop me now." An arm and foot of feminine proportions squeezed through the aperture before I could prevent them. To push harder was only to injure the innocent possessor, yet close that door I must.

"I'm going to get in, see if I don't," and a tangled mass of golden hair pushed partly into the opening, while the extended hand groped ominously to and fro, seeking to find and push me away. Finally the fingers touched my wrist and closed tightly around it. I could not shake them off.

"Please let me in, papa. You never acted so—." The sentence remained unfinished and broke off in a frightened gasp.

Suddenly I thought of the mirror I had caught a glimpse of at the side of the room, and looked up to see a pair of terror-stricken eyes gazing wildly into my own. For a full half-minute we stood there, then the hold upon my hand relaxed, the arm and curls slowly withdrew, and I heard her sink to the floor.

A moment later I was in the ball, dashing water upon an upturned face, from which every trace of color had fled, forgetful of the fact that I was a stranger and only partly clad.

But the rest of the story, and what came of it, is much too long to narrate here. Suffice it to say, that my mother had sold the homestead and started on a trip to Europe, seeking to surprise me by an unannounced visit. An estimable family had been the purchasers, and the father, by some strange coincidence, had been detained in the city that evening and neglected to notify his wife of his absence. His daughter—

But that is another story.

Teeth as Souvenirs. A curio collector reports an unprecedented demand for false teeth.

"It is the teeth of famous persons deceased that are wanted," he said. "I don't know for sure what has started the boom in artificial teeth. Ever since I have been in this business I have had occasional requests from eccentric patrons for a set of somebody's teeth, but in the last few months inquiries have simply poured in concerning the teeth of men prominent in the last century. I am inclined to think that this craze for teeth has been stimulated by the report that Washington's false teeth had been stolen out of a museum in Baltimore.—N. Y. Sun.

Beginning right.

The surest way of making the world better is to begin with ourselves. Until we have fought our own sins, and come up against the deceitfulness of our own hearts, we cannot be wise warriors for the right, or merciful helpers to the fallen. Until we have learned self-denial, obedience and love, we will be of very little use in the world's dark places. Being good is the threshold of doing good.

COURIER-JOURNAL FIRE

Machinery Intact and Will Soon Be in Operation

THE LEDGER yesterday briefly noted the fire at The Courier-Journal Building in Louisville, which broke out at an early hour Friday morning and for the first time in its entire forty years of history, The Courier-Journal was compelled to come out yesterday morning from a plant not its own.

The fire originated from unconfined chemicals in the plant of the Tinsley-Mayer Engraving Company, on the third floor of the building.

The heaviest loss, amounting to several hundred thousand dollars, will fall on The Courier-Journal and Times, and the loss of other occupants of the building will reach between $40,000 and $50,000. The heaviest losers outside the newspapers were the Tinsley-Mayer Engraving Company, about $10,000; the Lemon Jewelry Store, about a similar amount from water damage, and Harvey Joiner and Thomas E. Grove, artists, whose monetary loss grieves them less that their life work went up in a few minutes' smoke.

The building and contents were insured for about 80% of their value.

FEARS.

Too much rain for the farmer.
Wesley M. E. Church is going to rack for want of a new roof.

The Junior Order, assisted by the G. A. R., raised a staff flag on our schoolhouse two years ago, but it fails to wave during school.

The rain poured down the first of the reunion, but the second day made up for two days and a large crowd and good speaking made it a success all 'round.

The Basket Meeting Sunday conducted by Elders Degman and Hall was an enjoyable and successful one, as to a good turnout and good preaching. Come again, all of you next year.

Mrs. Annie Himes, mentioned in last week's items, died a few days after her mother and the remains were interred at the Wilson family grave yard.

There was a very good turnout of old soldiers at the reunion in Mower Park on Saturday and they formed and made a parade with the Trinity Order of Redmen. The rain the first day kept those from a distance away. Our Maysville, Tolleshore and Manchester comrades failed to attend. Now old boys, if God let's you live until next year—and I think he will you come to the Mower Park reunion if you are not sick.

EAST LIMESTONE.

Mrs. H. A. Power was here on business the past week.

Master Tommy Swartz of Flemingsburg is visiting his uncle, Mr. Nick King.

Wheat threshing has been somewhat debarred this week on account of rains.

Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Tucker have sold their farm in this vicinity to Mr. Clarence Phillips of Orangefield.

Mrs. Emma Stevens and brother, Bert, spent from Friday until Monday with friends at Ewing and attended the Fair.

Stock dealers from this neighborhood attended Court at Flemingsburg Monday and reported a large crowd in the little city.

The ice cream supper given by the Stone-lick Baptist Church Saturday night at Orangefield was largely attended, all reporting plenty of cold cream, delicious cake and a large crowd.

Mr. Harry McElfresh had the misfortune to lose a valuable horse Monday. Veterinary Surgeon Phillips of Maysville was summoned, but he at first glance pronounced the poor suffering animal past all medical aid. The horse was valued at about $200.

Mrs. Sue E. Williams and daughter have returned home, after a pleasant visit to the family of Mrs. J. W. Tally of Cottageville and attended the annual reunion and basket meeting at Mower Park, Lewis county. The grounds were beautifully decorated with flags amidst nature's green canopy, where a large and joyous crowd assembled each day. Rev. Degman, Hall, Tomison, Moore and others delivered able addresses. The music by the Boggs brothers was well rendered. A bountiful dinner was served on the ground each day, which goes to show that the Lewis county people never do anything by halves.

HAY AND STRAW.

Mr. Hugh O'Donnell, en route from New York, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Ennise O'Donnell of Bridge street. He leaves today for his home in Chicago accompanied by his interesting children, Hugh, Jr., and Miss Ennise, whose departure after a delightful vacation visit, the younger set of Maysville society will regret.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hail! Catarrh Cure is the only positive known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hail! Catarrh Cure takes internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
